It is natural that the immediate relatives of Capt. F Prizes News:-As you have made pretty free use of each other than the English and Chinese.—In you have made pretty free use of my name in connection with the charge of Know No. kington, I truet you will permit me to say, through your columns, at 14th bereity most positively, that I made the course they call the English as "isorbarians" the Ray. Lord Arthur Hervey and Lord Almand "outside devils," and the English destroy. Her exact age cannot be acceptable to the columns at 14th bereit have been, a member of the them because they call the say and the parish register of Hargravy that she was baptized in secret or public, whose principles and objects were such as are commonly attributed to that famous order. I will add that the expression of my opposition has at ways been so open and unequivocal that no one who knew me personally has ever so far mistock my sentiments as to approach me by word or hint of invitation to connect rays, if with the order, during all the period I cannot say that I care much about the charge, as It has been so recklessly and indicriminately mined at every body, that its significance is gone—it has coased to be a sug-lear. But having met one or two innocent speakers on your side, who had taken the charge on the credit of the News and the Patriot, and deveted considerable wind to its circulation, supposing it to be true, my natural kindness of heart prempts me to try and cave further trouble about it. I know how bad you will all feel about circulating a story of your opponents not strictly fruc-and to save that mortification to yourselves and your associate advocates of the election of the Democratic ticket, more than for any other mo-tive, I profer this correction.

Vours, &c., L. P. HARVEY. The News, by way of apology for making this false charge against Mr. HARVEY, says : "With regard to the charge of Know-Nothingism which has been preferred against Mr. Harrey, we have to say that our information upon such subjects is obtained from gentlethen who are supposed to be conversant with norters of that kind, and is emitted to more or less are did as the case may be."

The Know-Nothing allies and correspondent of the News will, no doubt, manufacture to order any story that the party necessities may call for: but their inventions car no longer impose upon the People. Men of all parties understand perfectly well that this periodical outery about Know-Nothingism is a mere partisan trick to throw dust in the eyes of Adopted Citizens, and fool them into voting for Sham Democracy.

Gov. Randail and Mr. Schurz. The News attacks Mr. Schurz very augrily " Know-Nothingiam" had nothing whatever but that it was in response to the undoubted preference of the great mass of the Republican party. The News says: A simple mistake will always admit of palliation, but corrapt conduct will not, and when Carl Schurz declared that he would not pailiate Gov. Randall's conduct, he, in effect, charged him with being corrupt, and no one acquainted with him will doubt that he meant to be so understood. His advice, therefore to his friends, is that they shall support a candidate for re-election who has proven himself corrupt in office.

Mr. Schurzer, present charged on infine. Mr. SCHUBZ never charged, or intimated United States Senate. that Gov. RANDALL was corrupt, and neither the News, nor any other Sham Democratic organ in the State, can point to a single act of Gov. RANDALL's administration which has the least taint of corruption. It was Mr. Hodart, at Hericon, who refused to palliste Gov. Barstow's conduct, and admitted all the charges of "corruption," &c., which have been brought against him by the Republican press and party. This Randall and Hobart were advertised to speak at this place on Tuesday, the 25th just. Long before the appointed hour, the streets of our village were filled with crowde of intelligent yeomany from the surrounding country, all deeply anxious to see and to hear the Gubernatorial candidates, and all were greatly disappointed when it was ascertained that Governor Randall could not be present in consequence of ill health; but he sent us, as the result proved, a very able and eloquent substitute in Mr. J. He tried to please, complimented the village, plastered the pioneers, and did his best to flatter the people by telling them what of course they did not know, that they were the source of all political power. He advocated strongly Squatter Savereignty, the small platform of the small giant, Douglas. The abolition portion of his speech would not have done discredit to GERRIT SMITH he was as much an auti-slavery man as any body else, and the Democracy were as much opposed to slavery as the Republicans; this, of course, was news to everybody. He ended off with a reliash of the twenty times repeat and refuted story about the vast expenses of Kandall's administration, which everybody knows was to pay up for Barsfow's debts and Democratic defications.

Mr. Johnson replied ; he said that Governor RANDALL wished him to say to the peo-licated in 1810 because he could not reconcile ple here that they might depend upon it that the interests of France with those of Holland, he should continue to occupy the same posiwith tremendous cheers, as it is just what our citizens wish for. Mr. Johnson then reviewed the speech of Horari in a courteous but caustic menner; he proved by the documents that in 1849 Mr. Horar was in word of the exclusion of slavery from all the Territories of the United States by Congressional interference, not by Squatter Sovereignty; and, said Mr. Johnson, if this was good Demogratic doctring in 1840 mr. The exclusion of slavery from the Territories by Congress was the doctrine of Wash-NGTON, of JEFFERSON and of all the great and good men who fought the battles of the Revolution, and formed the Constitution .-This is now the platform of the Republican party-identical in position with that ocenpied by the fathers of the country. Mr. Ho-BART had said that the feedslature last winter voted a small tax for the purpose of influencing the elections. Mr. Johnson asked electioneering story, the Legislature of last the State asking the people to make him Governor. If Mr. Hobart finds fault with a small tax how much more fault would be find with a large tax? But we cannot give any adequate description of the powerful speech of Mr. Johnson. Suffice it to say that he entirely demolished the flimsy, transparent curtain of pretence and sophistry which Hobart had thrown around Democratic delinquencies, and showed in strong contrast the beauty, consistency and justice the Republican platform. All admitted that he was a most able and and an another that he was a most and an eloquent speaker, and that Governor RanDall could not have placed his cause in better hands. The Republicans were all well pleased, and many Democrats disappointed

Brioht and Fitch occupy their seats only by fraud of the grossest kind—Broles, of Penn., has been repudiated by his State, and Douglas kept his place only for bearing eloquent witness to the fact that lown doctrines where they work against themto do with Gov. PROCLAMATION-THANKSGIVING ANOTHER YEAR, with its varied experiences and of issitudes, has nearly gone, the seed time and harvest save passed away, and the products of the earth morabundant and excellent, in many respects than usual, have been gathered in. Our State has been favored by an overruling Providence with exemption from pestilence, or any prevailing disease, and the commercial and floancial distress, under which our land has so long saffered, seems to be approaching an end. As a State gone about their daily avocations in peace and quietness. As a nation, too, we have been exempted from the scenes of blood which have been the result in other lands of the shock of contending hosts,

It is right that we should, as a people, render the trib-ute of our thanks to the Author of all good, for the establishment and continuance of our free institution for the general health and prosperity of our people, for the blessings of peace, for the privileges of free education, and freedom to worship God according to the blessings, individual and national, so bountifully sho zed upon us. in this foul tragedy, but we will forbear.—
It is probably within the province of a just and righteous God to set his curse upon them. This is already written in a text of fire upon the records of heaven, and consti-tutes a fearful debt against the mortals upon whom it fails, which they will be called to settle in an after life. The curses of men are settle in an after life. The curses of men are but trifling indeed as compared to this, and we may do no more than to invoke the just vengeance of Heaven, without resorting to the more trifling alternative. This will set a flame of torture within their hearts that shall never cease its burning—that shall, whether aleeping or waking, haunt them and good them through a life time of horror, filled with self-repreach, and vain and idle longings that the past might be retraced, and this base, cowardly and wicked deed be unperase, cowardly and wicked deed be

The cold, senseless and inanimate lump of clay no longer moves obedient to the dictates of the giant intellect which once inhabited it, and the admirers of genius, honor, and a brave and indominable heart, can now lay the alter their few sift officines of prave and indomitable heart, can now lay upon the alter their few gift offerings of praise, without being held amenable to his maligners to the charge of desiring to promote the advancement of his political fortunes. somehow or other it was always obliging enough to slip off, so as to give each of his viotims a full view of his face, only no two

My father was a Gloucestershire man. He stood six feet three in his stockings, and about half-past nine o'clock that same even-ing. It was as beautiful a wiuter's night as ever you were out in. His nag was a first rate hunter, as docile as a dog, and fit to car-ry his weight over, or past anything. He had a brace of excellent pistols in his holsters; had a brace of excellent pistols in his holsters; and he jogged along, humming a merry tune, neither thinking nor caring for any robber ander the sun. All of a sudden, it struck him that the pretty barmaid of an inn just out of Warwick town, where he had stopped to have a girth that he had broken patched together, had been very busy with those self-same pistols; and suspecting that she might have been tampering with them, he drew the charges and reloaded them carefully. This done he jogged on again as before.

charges and reloaded them carefully. This done he jogged on again as before.

He had ridden about ten miles, when he came to wooden bridge that there was in those days over the Avon. Just beyond it rose a selish hill, at the top of which was a sudden bend in the road. Just as my father reached this turn, a horeoman suddenly wheeled round upon him, and bade him "Stand and deliver?" It was Tom Rocket! In a second my father's pistols were out, cooked, and snapped within a yard of the highwayman's chest; but, one after the other, they missed fire! The pretty barmaid—a somial favorite of Tom's—was too sharp a pistol within an inch of his face as he lay, bade him be quiet, or it would be the worse for him.

"You've given a deal of trouble," said Tom, "so just hand over your purse without any more ado, or by G—d! I'll send a bullet through your skull—just there;" and he laid the cold muzzle of his pistol on my father's forehead just between his eyes. It is bad enough to have to look down the barrel of loaded fire-arms upon full cock, with a highwayman's finger upon the trigger; but to have the cold muzzie pressed slowly upon your head-ugh!-it makes me creep to think of it.

"I'll see," Tom replied, quietly taking out and unfolding half a dozen legal looking

"Then," Tom replied, "I may tear them up," and he made as though he would do

"Hold! on your life!" my father shouted, struggling hard, but in vain, to rise.
"Oh, they are worth something, then," said Tom, with a grin.
"It would take a deal of trouble to make them out again," my father replied sulkily-

"How much trouble?" Tom inquired, with you please."

"You know very well that these papers are worth more than a hundred," said Tom,

"A hundred and fifty, then," said my father.

"Go on," said Tom.

"I tell you what it is, you scoundrel," cried my father, "I'll stake five hundred against them if you'll lose your hold, and light me fairly for it."

afterwards."

"How am I to know that you will keep your word," my father replied, a little softened by the hope of regaining, even at so heavy a price, the papers that were invaluable to his.

"T'm Tom Rocket," replied the robber, souring the pocket pook upon his person, what I meau, I say; and what I say, I ick to. Now, get up, and mind," he added.

"Shall I help you to catch your horse?"

Tom asked politely.

"I'll never rest till I lodge you in jail,"

he got off: and when the law was altered—so that they could get such errors right at the trial—people, leastwise lawyers, said that the British constitution was being pulled up, root and branch. But that's neither here nor there. I cannot tell you how it was that he came to be known as Tom Rocket, and if I could, it would not have anything to do with my story. For six years he was the most famous thief in the Midland counties, and for six years no one knew what he was like. He was a lazy fellow, was Tom; he never came out except when there was a good prize to be picked up, and he had his scouts and his spies all over the place to give him information about booty, and warn him of danger. But to judge by what people said, he was "on the road" at halfa-dozen different places at once every day of his life; for you A TTORNEYS AT LAW, MILWAUKEE, Wincourin. when my father's second pistol dashed in the pan.

"Yes!" shouted my father, in a fury, "one for your nob!" And seizing the weapon last used by the muzzle, he hurled it with all his might and main at Rocket's Lead. Tom ducked, the pistol flew over the hedge, and my father, thrown out of balance by his exertion, lost his seat, and fell heavily upon the grass by the road side.
